Our service ethos is to provide an equally impressive facility to both our clients and candidates where communication and commitment are guaranteed. As an independent consultancy, we are able to provide a seamless uncomplicated service, which will assist you in meeting your recruitment objectives.

our approach

We are aware that each organisation invests extensive resources in developing a corporate culture and identity. As an employer it is important you feel your recruitment partners understand more than just the basics and that there is an appreciation of your culture, motivations and critical business needs.

As recruitment specialists, our philosophy is to provide a personalised service that is tailored to meet your requirements, applying a methodology which best reflects your organisation to potential employees. Whether your requirement is for one person or multiple vacancies, we will utilise the widest range of resources possible to source and select the highest calibre individuals for your organisation. You will receive a dedicated service, which positively contributes to your recruitment process helping you to deliver on your recruitment strategy.

our candidates

The candidates on our ever expanding database have been identified as experienced, committed individuals who can clearly demonstrated their valuable transferable skills. Unlike many recruitment firms claims, every candidate on the Rise Recruitment database has been thoroughly interviewed and is regularly contacted to ensure all information is up to date including, aspirations, skills and personal circumstances.

customer services

The customer service sector is lead by professionals who understand the complex business of creating and managing effective customer contact departments. Whether this is outbound, inbound or a blended operation it takes a passionate and talented group of individuals to construct a successful team. The recruitment team at Rise Recruitment have extensive experience of recruitment in this sector, at all levels, from those on the phone to Operational Directors. With the correct selection tools and up-to-date industry knowledge you can be confident that we will understand your requirements, take note of your environment and provide you with only the best candidates.

human resources

Human Resources and Personnel departments are an invaluable function of any successful organisation. The skills required to build a career in this sector include, knowledge, training, experience and superb communication skills. As one of the most varied disciplines an HR professional may need to be an impressive all-rounder or a specialist in specific fields. When you need to recruit into this department we are able to ensure you will be presented with candidates who have the combination of soft skills and experience, which will make them an effective member of your team. From Administrators to Qualified Senior Management, both permanent and temporary, you will receive an efficient recruitment service from start to finish.

office support

Most departments find their workloads become practically unmanageable when they are without effective office support. The range of skills required can vary from company to company but notably these skills are based on a foundation of reliability, adaptability and solid IT skills. We focus on placing quality secretarial and administrative staff at all across a broad range of roles including personal assistants, team secretaries, receptionists, administrators, project assistants and DTP operators for both temporary and permanent appointments.
